In Memorian

In memory of our dear father, C. F. Smith, who died one year ago today, August 7, 1926.

Father one sad year ago,
Since you were taken away,
But we know you are sweetly sleeping,
Sleeping sweet at Jesus' feet.
Oh! we miss you as the year go by.
But we hope to meet you in the sweet bye and bye.

By His Children.

Obituary

On Thursday June the 30th, 1927, the death angel came in the stillness of the night to the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Woodson and closed the eyes of little Victoria and left her sweet voice dumb. Her death was a shock to the loved ones standing by as she had only been ill such a short time.

Although only thirteen years of age, her sweet pious little life shone out like a beaming star to all who knew her. In the school room she was every one's "little chum," in the home she was ever "Daddy's little bright smiling star" and "Mother's patient little helper."

She leaves behind a father, mother, two brothers, four sisters, with a host of relatives and friends. To the bereaved family we can only say:

"Weep not for little Toria,
She is not dead she's only sleep
There will be no tears up yonder
No cause ever for her to weep
For sorrow there shall have no place
But all broken hearts will be healed,
And never shall shadow mar one smiling face."

One Who Loved Her.

NOTICE

To the Voters of Appomattox County, and Judges Appointed to Conduct the Primary Election on August 2nd:

My attention has recently been called to a mistake which has been made in the instructions sent out to the Registrars to be used by voters voting by mail, for which mistake I assume full responsibility.

In sending out the forms to be used in voting by mail, a number of old forms of coupons, and vouchers on the back of envelope No. 2 were used, which provided that the same may be certified to by a Postmaster, or other person authorized to take acknowledgments to deeds.

It seems this was the law up until a few years ago, when the law was changed, and it was provided that only a Notary Public, or other officer authorized to take acknowledgments to deeds, should certify to the voucher and coupon. I did not know this law had been changed when these old forms were sent out, which was done to meet the demand for early voting, and it was clearly an oversight on my part. When the new forms were printed the law was correct y printed on them, but by inadvertance the word Postmaster was not left off, and printed thereon instead of Notary Public. I regret this very much, and it was certainly unintentional on my part, as these old forms have been used ever since the law was changed, and no question was ever raised.

As soon as my attention was called to this fact, I immediately took steps to put corrected forms in the hands of the Registrars, which has been done, and while some voters may have marked their ballots in the presence of a Postmaster, and had it certified to by him, I do not think that will be the case with very many voters, and I think those ballots ought to be counted if proper votes and otherwise legally cast, and I trust and believe the Judges of the election, under the circumstances will take this view of it and allow them to be counted.

This same form was used, or sent to voters friendly to all the candidates. I think the will of the voters ought to be expressed, as I had no intention whatever of doing anything improper, and I have the assurance from a number of the candidates and their friends, that they will raise no question in regard to those who had their ballots certified by a Postmaster, if they are entitled to vote, and I trust that all will agree that this be done.

Respectfully,
E. LeRoy Smith, Secy.
Electoral Board.

WILL VISIT "LOST WORLD" OF NOVEL

American Museum Expedition Will Explore Place.

New York.—The scene of Conan Doyle's famous novel and movie, "The Lost World," will be visited and its animal life studied this summer by T. D. Carter and G. H. H. Tate of the American Museum of Natural History in their expedition to Mount Roraima, Brazil, under the auspices of Lee Garnett Day.

Mount Roraima, which is in the northern tip of Brazil bordering on British Guiana, is an ancient district geologically. With some of the country south of the Amazon it formed a continent ages before the formation of the rest of South America. This was long before the existence of the Amazon river. Later the Amazon divided the old continent, and new land appeared, forming the South America of today.

Mount Roraima consists of a plain from which rises a sugar-loaf mountain with sharp cliffs. The geological structure of the plain differs from that of the mountain. The plain is thought to date back to the proterozoic era, one of the earliest periods in which life is known to have existed. The mountain, however, is of red sandstone, probably of the Jurassic period of the age of reptiles, a much later time.

Because of the early formation of this land, Mount Roraima became one of the first strongholds for mammals and birds when they appeared upon the earth. Little is known of the present-day animal life of this region and it is hoped that the expedition will bring to light some interesting species. The dinosaurs and pterodactyls of Conan Doyle's romance have, of course, been dead for many ages, but relics of archaic mammalian and bird faunas probably haunt the region still.

15,000 Cypriotes Roam About Without Country

Cairo.—The unhappy plight of the "man without a country" seems to be multiplied many times in the case of Cypriotes, as the natives of Cypress are called in Egypt, and that entirely without any fault of their own. It will be recalled that Cyprus formally was annexed by Great Britain at the outbreak of the war with Turkey, in November, 1914, and in that act all the inhabitants of the island were made British subjects. There were and are today in Egypt, however, about 15,000 Cypriotes, for whom no provision was made in the act of annexation.

For a dozen years they have occupied an equivocal position, not having renounced their allegiance to Cyprus, and yet not being recognized as subjects of the new sovereign of that island. Now the Egyptian government puts them in an awkward quandry by demanding peremptorily that they either become Egyptian subjects or citizens or else quit the country as undesirable aliens.

The Cypriotes have sent a delegation to London to appeal to the British government for its protection, assuming that if it extends its citizenship to them, as it did to the actual residents of Cyprus, they will be enabled thus to remain in Egypt, where their interests chiefly lie, or else to return to Cyprus as citizens of that island.

Mountain Fort Stands Guard on Adriatic Sea

Vallona, Albania.—Saseno (or Sazan), the mountain in the sea that guards the entrance to the landlocked harbor of Vallona, has acquired the new name of "The Italian Sentinel of the Balkans."

Albanians say the Italians, who acquired it from Albania a few years ago, have so fortified it that it not only protects the harbor but that its guns, smiting their fire on the coast of Brindisi can close the Adriatic to any sort of navigation. They can also command the Albanian coast as far north as Durazzo.

The island, rising gradually from the sea to a height of 500 feet, is of limestone. Roads the Italians have built to the summit and the sentry-boxes erected there and on the flanks of the mountain may be seen from a distance.

War Delays Hunt for Cradle of Mankind

Tacoma, Wash.—War and science should be divorced. At least so thinks Roy Chapman Andrews of the expedition in Mongolia and the Gobi desert seeking the cradle of mankind.

Because of disturbed conditions in Mongolia and China the scientists have postponed exploration work for a year and all members of the party will return early to the United States.

George Olson, member of the expedition reached here recently on the President Jefferson and reported the scientific equipment assembled at great expense was ransacked in the first leg of the journey toward Gobi and that Andrews decided to take no chances of meeting brigands.

Mrs. S. J. Evans, and children, are visiting her mother, Mrs. W. T. Johnson, in Roanoke.

Pockets and Plaids Items of Coat Interest

Choose a soft basket-weave plaid worsted for your spring coat, because it is good style, "comfy," handsome and at the same time practical from the utility standpoint. Or course, it must have big pockets and raglan sleeves. Plaid woolens in black and white best interpret smart vogue.

More Ribbons and Flowers for Milady's Spring Hat

Just arrived from Paris, flower toques! They proclaim the violet vogue—boutonnieres to match for the coat collar, accompanying the hat, either purple or white. Lots of fanciful ribbons, too! For hats, belts, handbags 'n everything, striped ribbon is "it" just now. Wide brims coming! Top hat in picture answers "yes."

Wonderful Trip

I left Virginia for Seattle June 25th and attended National Educational Association at that place as a delegate from Virginia. The association was a grand success and highly enjoyed. While in Seattle I was for a while the guest of Mr. C. H. Allen and family, who formerly lived in Appomattox and they still have the good people of Appomattox deeply impressed in their hearts. My trip has been largely sightseeing going via Canadian Rockies, returning by way of St Louis. I am now in San Francisco and tomorrow will leave for Los Angeles and back thru Yellow Stone Park—A most wonderful trip thru the west. It takes many days yet to complete the trip. Greetings and good wishes for my friends,
